60 min/mo and $29 Pro are vendor-page figures. Free clips carry a watermark and a 3-day download window - scene F says so on screen, so the voice does not have to repeat it.

A · HOOK

"You don't need an editor to post clips."

Flat and certain. The claim, not a tease. Hit 'editor'.

3.25s

B · THE 60

"The free plan gives you sixty minutes a month."

The number is already on screen counting. Say it like a fact you checked.

6.55s

C · FEED IT

"Feed it any podcast, talk or webinar."

Four cards land as you list them. Let them breathe.

9.70s

D · THE PRICE

"Pro costs twenty-nine a month. Free costs nothing."

Two bars, two prices. Beat between the sentences.

12.75s

E · THE STEPS

"Paste the link. Keep what it ranks highest. Export vertical."

Three steps, three beats. The longest line in the reel, so do not rush it.

17.10s

F · THE RULE

"It cuts clips. It doesn't create them."

The honest ceiling. Calm, no apology.

19.75s

G · SIGN-OFF

"Comment CLIP and I'll send you the three steps."

Slowest line in the reel. An offer, not a pitch.

BEFORE YOU RECORD

- Record over the _silent cut. Every line sits on the picture it describes - this was rewritten 2026-08-18 after the first pass mapped VO to the draft beat names instead of the engine's slots.
- Never say the tool is unlimited. 60 minutes a month, watermarked, 3-day export window.
- CLIP is spoken as the word.
